

Kindergarten's Classroom Connection

February 25, 2016

What a busy and rainy week!

Tomorrow is the 100th day of Kindergarten. Yeah!! Everyone is so excited. We have been anticipating this day since day 1. Thank you for your help in collecting 100 items with your child.

Happy 100's Day!

Our guest reader this week was Mrs. Conti. She read, On Market Street, by Arnold and Anita Lobel. The class loved the Alphabet pictures and enjoyed Mrs. Conti's reading.

In language arts we introduced the "et" family and generated a list of "et" words on the board. Then we followed up by reading books featuring the "et" family.

This week in math we have been measuring objects around the room with cubes and Popsicle sticks. The kindergarteners seem to be really excited and engaged.

We finally cleaned out our reading bags ☺ So every kindergartener has a ziplock in their backpacks full of paper books.
